DESCRIPTORS Adult Education; Directories; Elementary Secondary Education; *Global Approach; Higher Education; International Organizations; National Organizations; *Organizations (Groups); Program Descriptions; Religious Organizations; *Social Studies; World Affairs; *World Problems

ABSTRACT

Descriptive information is given for 80 organizations. The organizations are concerned with world studies ranging from global population concerns to specific cultural societies. They represent global issues concerning education and teaching, international education, population and food, war and peace, religion, economics, and ocean education. Others promote understanding of more specific world elements such as Eastern arts and cultures of Africa, Asia, and the Mid East. For a few organizations, only title, address, and purpose are given. Most entries also include (1) telephone number; (2) lists of materials such as journals; libraries, classes, and programs; (3) costs and possible uses of materials; and (4) comments relating to availability and level of sophistication of specific materials. WORLD STUDIES: Selected Organizations

SP009340

Mid-America Program for Global Perspectives in Education
Social Studies Development Center
513 North Park Avenue
Indiana University
Bloomington, Indiana

Organization
Academy of World Studies

Address
2820 Van Ness Avenue
San Francisco, California
94109

Telephone
415/441-1404 or 1405

Purpose
The Academy is a non-profit organization concerned with promoting the ". . . synoptic (over-all) approach to the study of world affairs. The world is seen as a whole and each individual as one part of the continuum of mankind." The Academy is also concerned with problems of communication and views of probable and desirable futures.

Materials
1) Classes -- are offered in foreign languages, English-As-A-Second-Language, Alternative Routes to World Government, Cross-Cultural Encounters, World-view Perspective, and Toward Century 21 (a course of possible futures in the year 2000). Credit is offered by arrangement with some of the area's universities and the course, Worldview Perspective, has been offered as an extension course at neighboring institutions, including the University of California at Berkeley. Many are evening classes. Teaching methods used are not of the standard variety. The Academy attempts to get as much diversity as possible in its programs by encouraging small classes, involving high school students and adults including retired persons as participants.

2) A one page newsletter, Worldview/San Francisco, is published at unknown intervals which provides news of Academy activities.

3) The Academy has holdings of information compiled by its director and available to students and members on its worldview philosophy and related subjects.

4) The ongoing "World Ombudsman" program, an independent study, research, and training program under faculty direction is also available.

Costs
Vary. $50 to $300 for courses, averaging to about $150. Some scholarships are available.

Possible Uses
The Academy would be of direct interest primarily to people within the San Francisco Bay area in California. It has had experience in dealing with widely divergent groups of people and topics and emphasizes community programs and inter-cultural and foreign affairs.

Organization
African-American Institute

Address
833 United Nations Plaza
New York, New York
10017

Telephone
212/661-0800

Purpose
"The African-American Institute is the major U.S. private organization working to strengthen understanding between the United States and Africa."

Materials
1) A School Services Division exists to provide information and answer specific requests for information from teachers.

   a) The Division will answer specific questions on appropriate materials and their evaluation of them on request. Describe their proposed use and grade level.

   b) Some Division materials have been published commercially and are handled by Social Studies School Service, 10,000 Culver Boulevard, Culver City, California 90230.

      i) Africa Alive in the Secondary Classroom contains ideas for teaching courses about Africa.

      ii) Teaching Materials from Africa contains African school materials usable by American peers.

      iii) Teaching African Geography From a Global Perspective

   c) Teaching Africa Today is a guide to designing courses on Africa in many fields and is available from Citation Press, 50 West 44th Street, New York, New York 10036. Cost is $3.85.

   (All of the above materials in b) and c) as well as other basic books, wall charts, and maps are available from Social Studies School Service as Secondary Starter Kit (Grades 7-12) for $15.00. There is also an Elementary School Starter Kit (Grades K-6) and a Southern Africa Kit.)

   d) A series of leaflets is available from the Division. Largely bibliographies, other items are included as well. Some are listed below:

      i) Bibliographies of films and film librarys and records of African music

      ii) Bibliographies of materials for elementary and secondary students, teachers, basic bibliography of Africa, free and inexpensive materials, teaching materials from Africa, etc.; eleven in all.

iii) There is even a leaflet with African recipes.

2) Africa Report is a magazine published bimonthly and is available at $9.00/year. As well as commentary on news from Africa, and articles of political interest, Africa Report provides information on Africa's cultural life and important personalities. The magazine is pitched to average or above average high school students.

3) The "Educators to Africa Association" program provides eligibility for low cost African travel programs, plus a subscription to Africa Report and materials for educators for $10.00 per student or $15.00 for an educator.

Note

The Institute is by far the most active organization in African Area Studies and its materials should be seriously considered by anyone teaching a course dealing with Africa. Africa Report is highly recommended as being very useful to students and informative on many aspects of Africa in a generalist fashion. The School Services Division will answer specific questions and one should feel free to consult with them as they have a great deal to offer on Africa.

Organization
American Assembly

Address
Columbia University
New York, New York
10027

Activities
The organization holds conferences throughout the US and around the world, inviting prominent businessmen, labor leaders, government officials and educators to present papers or participate in panel discussions. The conferences produce reports and edited volumes on particular issues, mostly concerning the United States.

Materials
1) An extensive booklist is available. Most titles are from commercial publishers, however, the Assembly does handle some materials. Some samples:

   a) 1972 - "The United States and the United Nations" is a conference report presenting agreement on future American participation in UN.

   b) A series of American Assembly National Reports - about 15 titles on American concerns.

   c) Another series of International Reports, 7 titles concerned with the U.S. and foreign affairs.

2) Booklist is free. Other materials priced as marked on the list. Note: the Assembly is primarily concerned with topics concerning American domestic or foreign policy.

Organization
American Committee on Africa

Address
164 Madison Avenue
New York, New York
10016

Purpose
The organization deals primarily with the issue of Southern Africa and United States relations to that part of the continent. ACOA is an action, political group which works for the goal of freedom and independence in Southern Africa.

Phone
212/532-3700: New York, New York
202/638-0835: Washington, D.C.
312/762-1821: Chicago, Illinois

Materials
The Committee can provide film study guide and information literature dealing with South Africa, price list is available. ACOA indicates that school program materials are available and that the following are good reference sources.

Studying Africa in Elementary and Secondary Schools, Leonard S. Kenworthy: order from Columbia Teachers College Bureau of Publications, New York, New York 10027.

African Affairs for the General Reader, (1960-1967); order from AAI, 866 UN Plaza, New York, New York 10017.

Through African Eyes - six booklets with teacher's guide, Praeger, III Fourth Avenue, New York 10003.

Organization
American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO

Address
1012 14th Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20005

Purpose
The AFT is one of the two large teacher organizations in America.

Materials
1) The AFT publishes a great many publications, mostly dealing with arguments for unionization, collective bargaining and reform in education. Curriculum comments and reviews of materials are also offered. A catalog is available.

2) Changing Education, a quarterly journal, is published by the AFT.

3) World Study and Travel for Teachers is a listing of overseas study programs and is also offered.

Organization
American Freedom from Hunger Foundation

Address
1717 H Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20006

Telephone
202/382-6772

Purpose
The Foundation and an affiliated youth organization, Young World Development, are ". . . dedicated to greater public understanding and support for programs to combat the causes of hunger and to promote development, both within and outside the borders of the United States."

Materials
1) Young World Development Clubs sponsor Walks for Development to raise money for projects in the U.S. and overseas. They also sponsor local informative and educational activities. Information on becoming involved in YWD programs is free.

2) Various materials are published by the YWD/AFFHF education department, including:

   a) New Yorld, a bi-monthly tabloid newspaper. $5.00/year.

   b) Development: Bridge to Peace, a guide to the study of development including a curriculum unit and a bibliography which was unavailable for examination, $1.00.

   c) Guide to Films About Development, a description of about 150 films and 31 filmstrips. Published in 1971, it includes a short description or comment on each film and rental prices. No grade level is indicated but from the entries it appears they are aimed at average or above average high school students. About 1/2 of the films are concerned with U.S development, the others with world development. Cost is $1.50.

   d) Issue packets on [illegible]r and Development ($1.50) and on Population and Development ([illegible]00). The former includes a bibliography and sources for further information.

   3) A handbook and other information on ways and means to get involved in or judging the worth of development efforts and education.

3) AFFHF provides direct financial support of development projects in the U.S. and abroad in cooperation with other organizations.

Possible Uses
The YWD/AFFHF materials may be used as sources of information by teachers concerned with development. Other materials are action oriented and would be useful outside of the classroom.

Organization
American Friends of the Middle East

Address
1717 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20036

Purpose
The AFME is "a private non-profit organization dedicated to furthering communication and understanding between the peoples of the Middle East and North Africa and the people of the United States through educational and informational programs."

Materials
1) The AFME is extensively involved with the needs and activities of students interested in attending U.S. schools.

2) The AFME Report, published quarterly by the AFME, carries information concerning the activities of the organization and similar groups, news from the Middle East and North Africa, and articles on countries and concerns of the area. It is about six pages long; the price is unknown.

3) The AFME also handles some materials of other organizations and its own materials. Lists of materials are available.

4) Teaching Opportunities in the Middle East and North Africa and Study and Research in the Middle East and North Africa, listings of opportunities for teaching and studying in that area, are available at $1.00 each.

5) The AFME will respond to individual questions concerning materials, information, and guidance on Middle East topics.

Organization
American Friends Service Committee

Address
160 North 15th Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
19102

Purpose
"The American Friends Service Committee is a non-profit corporation which seeks to reduce the causes and effects of violence and to create a wider and deeper community among men. It administers projects of social and technical assistance throughout the world, operates community relations programs in the United States, conducts seminars and institutes on peace and international affairs, and sponsors work and study projects for young people."

Materials
1) Films on various topics are provided by the regional offices of the AFSC.

2) A quarterly publication, Quaker News Bulletin describes the work of the AFSC. Various pamphlets are also available describing the AFSC work.

3) Numerous domestic and foreign projects have been and are undertaken by the AFSC.

4) It appears that contacting the nearest regional office may result in more materials than are available from the national headquarters. They are given below:

a) 980 North Oaks Avenue
Pasadena, California
91103

b) 2160 Lake Street

j) 814 N.E. 40th Street
Seattle, Washington
98105

Organization
American Society for Eastern Arts

Address
425 Bush Street
San Francisco, California
94108

Purpose
The A.S.E.A. is a non-profit educational foundation which provides information on and exposure to Asian cultures.

Materials
1) The ASEA provides concerts and instruction in Asian performing arts in the San Francisco area, as well as gallery showings of Asian art.

2) Members are given discounts on books, records, film rentals, and slide collections on Asia and Asian culture.

3) A bi-monthly Newsletter provides information on the Society's activities and materials membership is necessary for access to these things. An educator's membership costs $15.00.

Note
The Society concerns itself largely with Asian art, music, drama, plays, and other similar aspects of Asian culture. It could be most valuable to those interested in such things living within easy traveling distance of the San Francisco Bay area so as to be able to take advantage of the Society's center and its activities. However, the listings of items under 2) above is available outside of the Bay area to members.

Organization
American Universities Field Staff

Address
3 Lebanon Street
Hanover, New Hampshire 03755 and 535 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York

Purpose
AUFS is a non-profit, membership corporation of a group of American education institutions. It is devoted to the enlargement of American understanding of significant developments in foreign societies.

Materials
1) Fieldstaff Reports: short research papers dealing with political, economic, and social developments in Asia, Africa, Latin America, and Europe. Sixty reports are issued each year of about 15 pages. Cost is $35/year. Multiple copies are available. These reports are written by scholars residing within the countries they are writing about. They are on current affairs or continuing problems within the country, and a basic knowledge of the country is assumed. As such they would be most useful as supplemental information. They are written at a level which secondary students would find comfortable.

   a) List of Publications 1952-1973. This is a descriptive guide to all published reports.

2) Perspectives is a series of teaching/learning packets. Topics include: "Urbanization," "Looking at Ourselves," "Southeast Asia," "Perspectives on Africa."

3) Field Staff Books are also available. Some of them are written at the university level, others are aimed at high school programs.

4) A list of publications is available from AUFS yearly which describes 1) through 3) in more detail including prices, etc., plus other publications.

5) Two overseas programs are available in Singapore and Rome. Classroom and independent study are included. It is equivalent to a semester at a U.S. university. Details are available from AUFS.

Note
They have produced a variety of materials for use in schools. Write Intercultural Project for Secondary Schools, A.U.F.S. at the above address for information, including prices.

Organization
Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith

Address
315 Lexington Avenue
New York, New York
10016

Purpose
The League is interested in exploring the causes of and combating prejudice against Jews and other minorities, primarily in the U.S.

Materials
1) An international survey of human relations research is published.

2) Catalogues of audio-visual and written materials are available.

   a) Audio-visual materials -- over 120 films and over 20 filmstrips are described. Many of the listings are concerned with culture and problems of specific minority groups. Others are concerned with prejudice, civil rights in general, and teacher training on these and other topics.

   b) Publications catalogue -- books and pamphlets are described, dealing with the same topics as 2a). Both catalogues contain entries suitable for elementary students up to professional adults.

Organization
The Asia Society, Incorporated

Address
112 East 64th Street
New York, New York
10024

Purpose
The non-profit society ". . . has set itself two main goals: deepening American understanding of Asia and stimulating thoughtful trans-Pacific intellectual exchange. The Society's activies are wide-ranging, from analysis and discussion of critical problems in Asia's current affairs to presentations of the finest artistic and intellectual achievements . . ."

Materials
1) The Society has recently substantially reorganized its education program. It has been combined with other activities into an Educational Resources section. The Educational Resources section will be active in evaluating materials and providing information on them to teachers. A statement provided by the society is presented below:

"Initially, Educational Resources will concentrate on guiding elementary and secondary school teachers to translated literature from the Asian countries in order to introduce a humanistic dimension to their presentation of Asia.

The Program will work with organizations and persons who are developing new materials for student use, through consultation, evaluations and assistance with providing contacts with producers and distributors of educational materials."

Costs
Academic membership is $25 per year. It includes subscription to ASIA, the Society's quarterly journal, the monthly Calendar, a listing of pertinent radio and T.V. shows, lectures, films, etc., discounts on Asia House Gallery publications, and "a publication on Asia selected by the Asian Literature Program." Subscription to journal only is $6.00 per year.

Comments
The Society covers the field and presents all types of materials. The journal deals with politics, culture, literature, history and philosophy. Teachers should obtain lists of available materials, e.g., article reprints; library subscriptions to the journal would provide a steady flow of Asia materials at minimal cost.

Organization
Association for Asian Studies

Address
Ohio State University
29 West Woodruff Avenue
Columbus, Ohio
43210

Purpose
The Service Center for Teachers of Asian Studies, a part of the Association, is interested in promoting and improving the teaching of Asian Studies in the public schools.

Materials
1) Focus, published three times a year, is a very useful newsletter for teachers in this field. It lists and comments on new books and materials, and mentions the activities of other groups interested in this field as well as their own. At a cost of $1.00/year, it is an easy and relatively comprehensive way of keeping up with what's happening in teaching Asian studies. Ideas for teaching are also included.

2) A series of occasional papers, 5 as of this reviewing, are also available. Of interest is #1, A Critical Guide to Four Published Asian Studies Curriculum Programs for $1.00; Introducing Asian Studies in Elementary Education: China and India, #3, with an annotated bibliography of children's books, bibliographies of films, etc., and more general books for $1.00; #5, Problems and Opportunities in Improving Secondary Education About China which is free.

Note
The Service Center for teachers of Asian Studies has a clear focus on this particular topic. There are other Asian study groups that publish and evaluate Asian studies materials. The Service Center can provide a list of many such agencies.

Organization
The Atlantic Council of the United States

Address
1616 H Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006

Purpose
"The aim of the Atlantic Council is to promote closer mutually advantageous ties between Western Europe, North America, and Japan. The objective is greater security and more effective harmonization of economic and monetary policies for the benefit of the individual in his personal, business, financial and other relations across national boundaries."

Material
The Council publishes many Policy Papers on major issues of concern to citizens in Western Europe, North America, and Japan. In addition, the Council issues the Atlantic Community News--a monthly newsletter--and the Atlantic Community Quarterly. A large library is maintained and scholars are welcome to use it during regular office hours, Monday through Friday.

Organization
Atlantic Information Centre for Teachers

Address
23-25 Abbey Lane
8 Victoria Street
London S.W. 1, England

Purpose
From the materials reviewed, the Centre seems interested in promoting and aiding English teacher's efforts in U.S. and European relations.

Materials
1) The World and the School is a magazine published 3 times a year for $5.50. Each issue contains several articles on a single topic, e.g. Crime and Punishment, Europe and America, The Media, the international economic situation, etc. School teachers then comment on the articles and how to use them. A resume of the news of the period covered by the issue is also inserted. Other articles on international affairs and the teaching of them are included as well. The magazine is oriented toward British teachers and its terminology and slant may strike the reader somewhat askance. The latter is provocative on occasion. The magazine's articles would be suitable for above average high school students as well as teachers. Its differences from the standard product would make it best suited to the more sophisticated student.

2) World Survey, a monthly publication in which each issue is devoted to a single country or issue of international importance. More wide-ranging than 1) above, this publication includes one or more articles on the subject with a bibliography and a one-page summary of the world's events. Again the articles are for the above average high schooler and are written from a European point of view. Cost is $5.00 per year.

3) Crisis Papers are a series of occasional papers dealing with specifc topics (e.g. "China and the U.N.," "Bangla Desh: War as an Instrument of Policy," "Community Violence the Challenge of the Urban Guerilla," etc.) In each, newspaper commentaries are printed with a summarizing statement or introduction. Some of these topics are of marginal concern to U.S. schools, for example #29, "Northern Ireland: The White Paper," and newspaper commentary points of view are not as clearly different as in other areas. Others, notably #19, "Bangla Desh: War as an Instrument of Policy," among those reviewed, have much stronger divergence in the commentaries and points of view. As of late 1973 some 32 of these Papers were published. Many of them are still available and deal exclusively with international events. Some are available in French and German as well as English. The cost of 7 consecutive issues is $4.50 airmail and of single copies is $.75 airmail. A guide for suggested use is also available.

4) Reports of seminars on teaching international studies in British secondary schools are also available. They are, as of late 1972, National Stereotypes -- An Educational Challenge, $.60, Interdisciplinary Studies in Secondary Schools, $1.00, Teaching About the American Impact on Europe, Learning About International Institutions in Secondary Schools, Teaching About Collective Security and Conflict, and Television and World Affairs Teaching in Schools. Each contains papers and summaries of discussion presented at the seminar. Several titles were available for review and each contained factual articles rather than methods. National Stereotypes was particularly interesting due to several articles on stereotypes of Americans held by Europeans.

5) Correspondents World Wide, a loose leaf commentary on world affairs periodically updated and with statistical annexes is available for $35.00 a year. It was unavailable for review.

Note

The greatest value of these materials is that they are not American, and as such present a different view of the world than the one we are used to. This is systematically exploited by using differing accounts and opinions of events in the Crisis Papers series. The World and the School and to a lesser extent World Survey exhibit differences as well. Unfortunately, the National Stereotypes report contained pieces of papers rather than the papers themselves, but even so, the stereotypes of Americans and American youth held by students in Europe would be an excellent place to start a discussion of views of other cultures and stereotyping in general. Considering that European culture is lumped with American culture as "Western," the differences could help expose the large differences in viewpoints held even by culturally related peoples.

Costs for these items are flexible if bulk orders are placed for the first three entries.

Organization
CARE, Inc.

Address
660 1st Avenue
New York, New York
10016

Purpose
CARE is a non-profit organization supplying food and other services to needy people in the world. MEDICO, a service of CARE, provides medical services. Both are moving into development.

Materials
CARE and MEDICO are only secondarily interested in disseminating information. However, a selection of films and slides are available free of charge explaining activities of these two organizations. Write for Catalog.

Organization
Center for Defense Information

Address
122 Maryland Avenue, N.E.
Washington, D.C. 20002

Telephone
(202) 543-0400

Purpose
The Center makes "independent, informed analyses of United States defense policies available to journalists, scholars, government officials, and the general public." The staff and analysts consist of individuals with extensive military, government, and academic experience. The Center is a project of The Fund for Peace.

Material
Defense Monitor is a regular newsletter available to all Associates of the Center.

Organization
Center for Information on America

Address
Box C
Washington, Connecticut
06793

Phone
203/868-2602

Purpose
The Center is an independent, educational, non-profit and non-partisan organization dedicated to furthering the knowledge and understanding of America by Americans through informational publications, radio, films, television, and conferences.

Materials
1) Population Profiles is a series of 14 units, plus extras, for the study of demography.

a) Unit No. 1: "Why Study Population?" by Everett Lee. The unit introduces the subject, develops its importance, and identifies the social impact of birth rates, mortality rates, and migration upon economic progress, structure of government, and social change.

b) Unit No. 2: "The United States Among the Nations" by Everett Lee. The unit presents cross-national comparison of population growth rates and the relationship between national population growth and economic performance.

c) Unit No. 3: "The Vital Revolution: How Did We Get Where We Are Now?"

d) Unit No. 4: "The Health of Americans: Trends in Illness and Mortality."

e) Unit No. 5. "The Bearing of Children."

f) Unit No. 6. "Endless Movement: America As A Nation of Migrants."

g) Unit No. 7. "The Desertion of Our Countryside."

h) Unit No. 8. "Growth and Future of Cities."

i) Unit No. 9. "The Nation's Minorities."

j) Unit No. 10. "Black America."

k) Unit No. 11. "Education in the United States."

The series would fit mini-courses in world history, American studies, POD, etc., or could be expanded, by using all 14 units, into semester long courses. Study guides are available for each unit; suggested readings and activities are presented. Each unit is 8 pages long, with tables and charts.

Note
The cost is 50¢ per unit, with 20% discount on 10 or more units.

Organization
Center for International Education

Address
School of Education
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts
01002

Purpose
The Center is a part of the School of Education at the University. It is interested in international education and in developing materials and methods for teaching it in the schools.

Materials
The Center publishes materials useful for the teacher of international studies including bibliographies on the Middle East and Africa, curriculums for both of the above, general teaching of non-Western culture's methods, and reports and methods of some of the Center's overseas work and developed materials. Prices are given in the Center's catalogue.

Organization
Center for Teaching International Relations

Address
Graduate School of International Studies
University of Denver
Denver, Colorado
80210

Purpose
"The Center's approach to education is not one that offers packaged knowledge, avoids controversy, or presents materials in a 'this is the way it is' manner. Rather it is a dynamic and open-ended approach in which assumptions are challenged, value questions are raised, and the absence of easy answers is emphasized."

Materials
The Center has recently become a joint project of the Center for War/Peace studies. The Center is concerned with the Rocky Mountain area: Colorado, Wyoming, and New Mexico, and functions as a regional center connected with the Center for War/Peace Studies. Payment with orders is requested by the Center.

1) Global Dimensions is a series intended for use in secondary schools. Each entry contains materials that may be reproduced and used in other work. Four entries are listed at present:
   #1 International Dimensions to Racial and Ethnic Problems
   #2 The Global Environment: Alternatives for the Future
   #3 Conflict, War, and Peace in a Global Society
   #4 "Us" and "Them": Group Identity Conflicts.
   The cost is $.75 per unit.

2) CTIR Curriculum Units are listed on a flyer available from the Center. The cost varies from $.25 to $2.00. Eight units on international organization and system, comparative race relations, modernization, conflict resolution, etc. are described. Other listings of units are available in four areas: Nationalism, Latin America, Intervention, and Revolution.

3) CTIR Newsletter is a quarterly mimeographed offering providing news and notes of interest to teachers in international studies in the Rocky Mountain area.

Note
The Center's materials and services are offered in cooperation with the Center for War/Peace Studies.

Organization
Center for War/Peace Studies

Address
218 East 18th Street
New York, New York
10003

Purpose
The Center ". . . is a non-profit educational development, research, and consulting agency working nationally to provide students with an enhanced understanding of our global problems of war, peace, conflict, and change, and of how to deal with these to create a better, safer world."

Materials

1) Intercom is a magazine published three to five times a year at a cost of $6.00 for five issues. They contain materials and suggestions for teaching classes, usually in secondary social science areas. Each issue is organized around a single topic or theme. Recent choices have been: global perspectives, southern Africa, war, peace, conflict and change, development, U.S.-China relations, etc.

2) So You Want to Teach About is a series with several topics available: conflict, interdependence, development, population, and current world affairs. They "provide rationales, conceptual frameworks, and suggestions for introducing and developing these concepts with secondary students: Some also include lists of additional materials." Individual copies are available from the Center. The whole set is available from Social Studies School Service, 10,000 Culver Boulevard, Culver City, California 90230.

3) Quality of Life series contains classroom material for secondary schools. Topics available are Interdependence and Survival, Life Styles and Ecology, and Government and the Individual. Single copies are available from the Center, the whole set from Social Studies School Service.

4) China: A Starter Kit for Teachers containing a detailed teachers guide, five paperback books and other materials is available for secondary school use from the Social Studies School Service priced at $9.95. The kit would be quite useful to a beginning teacher of that subject.

5) War/Peace Report is a magazine published 10 times a year for a $5.00 subscription fee. Articles, commentary, and reviews of materials dealing with education efforts and world events having to do with war and peace are contained within.

6) Regional groups affiliated with the Center help distribute their materials. The materials are well done, and the quality and scope of the Center's work makes it a very useful organization for teachers.

Organization
Commission to Study the Organization of Peace

Address
866 United Nations Plaza
New York, New York
10017

Materials

1) 20th Report: The United Nations - The Next Twenty-Five Years. The report summarizes the recommendations of clever authors, each an expert in international affairs, to modify the U.N. The goal is to make the U.N. more effective in dealing with social and economic questions, as well as political and military matters. This report would be useful for courses on American history, the U.N., or mini-courses on international organization.

2) 21st Report: The United Nations and the Bed of the Sea, (II). This report is a series of two reports, a draft statute and a statement by President Nixon on policies to coordinate international use of the sea-bed. The report is short (42 pages), covers substantial terrain in proposing solutions to the effective use of seabed resources. Recommended for use in senior-level courses in American history, international issues, or control of the environment.

Other issues are considered in the other numbers of the series.

Note
20th Report: $1.50; 21st Report: $.75. Other reports are available. Also, the reports may be supplemented by using the original text of the written research papers. Substantial educational discounts are available. Write to the Commission for more information.

Organization
Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars

Address
Building 600T
Stanford, California
94305

Purpose
The Committee "includes students and professors who believe that scholars engaged in the professional study of Asia have a responsibility to speak out on the issues, such as the Indochina war, that touch on our area of specialization. The Committee has also been very active in public education efforts aimed at beginning to lift the blanket of misinformation about Asia that has been so pervasive in the United States since the end of World War II."

Materials
Asia Education Packet - 1973. This 24-page compendium provides bibliographies, classroom materials, and list of curriculum units on Asia, China, India, and Japan; commentaries and analyses are provided for most entries. A film list provides rental information and other pertinent data on 15 films. There is a special section listing works on China: books, pamphlets, articles and journals. This covers the society, politics and culture of the Indochinese region. This is an invaluable source guide.

Cost

Organization
The European Atlantic Movement (T.E.A.M.)

Address
7 Cathedral Close
Exeter, Devon, EX1, IEZ
England

Purpose
T.E.A.M. is a non-profit educational foundation with headquarters in Britain. It was founded in 1958 to stimulate interest in the developing European and Atlantic Communities. T.E.A.M. is specially concerned with Western Europe and North America as an area wherein the Atlantic Ocean, once a barrier, is now a link between great sectors of Western civilization . . . T.E.A.M.'s major activities are educational in the broadest sense. They fall into two categories. One is concerned with conferences, meetings, seminars, courses, and the like, in Britain and abroad. The other embraces the provision of information and the production of all kinds of teaching aids.

Materials
"A Teachers' and Students' Guide to Books About European and Atlantic Affairs." This thirty-two page guide selects books of interest for laymen, students, specialists and libraries; each volume selected is described and evaluated and pertains to an aspect of European or Atlantic politics or economics. A short course composed of selected books introduces the major topics and lays the groundwork for further reading. It is an extremely worthwhile guide.

Note
Write to the organization for more details.

20037

Purpose
To present information about the activities of the European Community organization and to prepare materials that describe and analyze Community activities; many are suitable for classroom use.

Materials
1) The Service requested that specific references to their many pamphlets be omitted as they change their titles frequently. Titles are varied and cover many areas. The Service will be happy to provide information on current titles.

2) European Community is a monthly publication of the Service containing articles on areas of interest to European politics and economics. A current listing of some of the Service's publications are listed on the back cover.

Organization
Foreign Policy Association

Address
Foreign Policy Association
345 East 46th Street
New York, New York
10017

Purpose
The F.P.A. is a private, non-profit, and non-partisan organization. "Its objective is to help stimulate an informed, thoughtful, and articulate public opinion on foreign policy issues facing the nation. To this end it works closely with many public and private organizations and with the schools."

Materials

1) Intercom, a periodical presently published by the Center for War/Peace Studies, was published by the F.P.A. until January, 1969. Some back issues, each devoted to articles on a single topic ranging from studies of particular geographic areas or problems to teaching about world affairs are available from the association. Cost is $1.00 each.

2) Headline Series have a long list of over eighty titles available. They are largely concerned with topics and problems of interest in area studies (fifty titles concerned with Europe, the USSR, Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the Middle East), U.S. Foreign Policy (eleven titles), and the U.N. and World Problems (twenty-four titles). The quality of these booklets, running around sixty pages in length, is extremely high. The topics and issues are both relevant and important. A great deal of information is provided in a readable form. The cost is $1.25 each. Five new titles a year are published by the F.P.A.

3) Great Decisions . . . 1974 is a yearly publication of the F.P.A. and is part of a yearly school and community education effort of the Association. Each year a set of topics is discussed in a series of short articles. The topics vary from year to year and back issues are available. Discussion questions and suggested readings are also included. Cost is $3.00 each.

4) U.S. Foreign Policy 1972-1973: The Critical Issues was published in 1972 by the Association. Facts and alternative policies in thirteen "crucial foreign policy problems" are presented in the book. Some of the material, as well as a couple of the problems, are now out of date. Cost is $1.25 per copy.

Note
Information on bulk prices, lists of titles, publishers, order forms, etc. may be found in the F.P.A.'s catalog; Publications of the Foreign Policy Association, which is available free of charge. It should be consulted before purchase of materials is made.

Organization
Foreign Policy Research Institute

Address
3508 Market Street, Suite 350
Science Center
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
19104

Purpose
This non-profit Institute publishes monographs dealing with foreign policy issues.

Materials
A monograph series, with thirteen titles as of late 1972, is published by the Institute. The analyses appear to be rather sophisticated and the titles are largely concerned with the east-west and european relations, as viewed from a U.S. foreign policy perspective (9 titles). Other titles of interest might be:

a) #5 Measuring International Alignments ($1.00)

b) #9 Aggression and Self-Defense: The Legality of U.S. Action in South Vietnam

c) #10 A Scale of Events Along a Conflict-Cooperation Continuum

d) #11 The Political Dimensions of Foreign Aid

Note
The sophisticated nature of these materials would appear to make them largely of interest to the advanced high school student or teacher.

Materials
1) The OECD Observer, published semi-monthly ($3.80 year) contains articles on the economic and diplomatic activities of the OECD.

2) Very detailed economic statistics and economic reports on member countries are published.

3) As OECD countries provide the bulk of development assistance to the third world, documents on aid and on specific problems in third world countries are also produced.

Note
OECD documents are not light reading matter. A series of general pamphlets describing OECD activities in various fields is available.

Organization
Overseas Development Council

Address
1717 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20036

Purpose
"The Council is a non-profit, non-governmental organization seeking to increase American understanding of the problems faced by the developing countries and the importance of these countries to the United States."

Materials
1) Perhaps the most useful material produced by the Council is Focusing on Global Poverty and Development: A Resource Book for Educators. This is an extensive syllabus, primarily aimed at secondary educators but containing material of use to primary educators as well. The first section deals with ways to integrate a development perspective into regular high school courses in US History and Government, Sociology, Anthropology, World History, Economics, Geography, Area Studies, Domestic Science, and Biology, Ecology, and Global Development.

   The second section deals with specific problems, providing background information and teaching suggestions in development, attitudes and change, jobs, agriculture, population, and promoting economic development. A large section of readings, case studies and other useful information follows. Finally a guide to films and a list of organizations and materials concludes the impressive enterprise. A copy was available for review and the quality of the work was felt to be excellent and worth the price of $10.00.

2) The Development Paper series are sophisticated pamphlets which deal with highly relevant topics in development and its problems. Costs varied between $.50 and $1.00 for the copies received for review. Titles in the series include: Power and Peace, Adjustment Assistance: American Jobs and Trade with the Developing Countries, and The Energy "Crisis" and U.S. Foreign Policy. These materials could be very useful for a teacher wishing to incorporate current information and analysis of development topics into relevant courses.

3) The Communique Series provides less sophisticated, general background on current development activities and problems. They cost $.10 each with discounts for large orders. A packet of ten communiques addressing immediate development problems packaged in a folder is available for $1.00. This package is entitled Toward Global Development.

Note
The quality of Council publications reviewed was uniformly high. Teachers interested in global studies should send for a listing of titles, prices, and descriptions of Council materials, available from the above address.

Organization
Oxfam America, Inc.

Address
474 Centre Street
Newton, Massachusetts
02158

Purpose
Oxfam America, a non-profit organization, is interested in development in the Third World, both by direct involvement through overseas projects and in American schools.

Materials
1) "Oxfam in Junior-Senior High Schools" is a catalog of books for students, background books, and pamphlets, films, charts, photographs, and simulation games. Prices, descriptions, and age levels are given in the catalog. Many of these materials are from the Oxfam organization in the U.K. Some of the content of the catalog is noted below:

   a) The Internationalist Magazine, a publication for students concerning development, Third World leaders, and rich-poor relations is available at $3.50/year.

   b) Books on development topics (e.g. hunger, urban migration, etc.) are available for various grade levels, from Junior to Senior high.

   c) Wall charts for development problems are available for around $.20 to $.50 each.

   d) Photograph sets on places in and problems of Third World countries are available at $.10 to $.25 a set (of six or twelve photos)

   e) Teachers resource books (including The Development Puzzle, a survey of materials of all sorts available for teaching about world poverty with articles and bibliographies on different aspects of this problem), $1.35.

   f) Simulations - The Aid Committee Game for grades 5-9 and the Development Game for grades 10-12 deal with constraints on development plans in poor countries. All are free but a donation is requested to cover costs.

Note
The materials are undergoing revision and expansion and the above mentioned publications may be changed and added to in the near future.

Organization
The Population Council

Address
245 Park Avenue
New York, New York
10017

Purpose
The Council is concerned with population problems and their ramifications in terms of cultural and materials resources. As well as publishing scholarly and popular materials, the Council is involved in projects overseas and with other organizations doing similar work.

Materials
1) The Council publishes several technical series aimed at professional demographers and family planners. Studies in Family Planning (a monthly journal), Reports on Population/Family Planning (a monograph series), and Current Publications in Population/Family Planning (a bimonthly bibliography) are all technical publications.

2) Country Profiles and Occasional Papers are more general and would perhaps be of use to a secondary teacher.

Note
The Council's materials are aimed at a professional audience and so are technical in nature.

Organization
The Population Reference Bureau

Address
1755 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C.
20036

Purpose
The non-profit Bureau views itself as ". . . a reliable source of information . . ." in the debate on population control and family planning.

Materials
For the price of a membership ($5 for a teacher, student, or library) the following are provided:

1) Population Bulletin (6 issues a year) is a magazine which devotes each issue to a particular topic. Back issues are $.50 each. Topics include population in the People's Republic (of China), Abortion, The Continuing Controversy, etc.

   a) The November 1969 issue - "A Source Book on Population" with over 400 entries of books, pamphlets, films, periodicals, etc. in an annotated bibliography dealing with all aspects of the problem from general presentations to demographic methods, to religious and ethical aspects in all parts of the world. A section of bibliographies is included. Further, a list of 55 private organizations, government agencies, and universities involved in work in this area with a description of it follows the bibliography. This issue is an impressive value for $.50 to a teacher at all interested in the topic and needing information on what's available. Many of its entries are sophisticated, specialized works, particularly the methods and specific problems sections. The general presentations and area works are less difficult.

2) Population Profiles - irregularly published, are short, condensed, one or two page summaries of demographic topics.

3) PRB Selections, also an occasional publication, reprints articles which the Bureau finds of interest.

4) An annual demographic summary of 160 countries is provided in the World Population Data Sheet published yearly, along with other sets of wall charts on demographic concepts at $.75 each.

Project on Asian Studies in Education

Address
300 Lane Hall
University of Michigan
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104

Purpose
The Project is designed to bridge the gap between university area centers and public education on Asia . . . The purpose of PASE is to assist teachers in secondary schools and two and four year colleges in the Midwest to improve their instruction in Asian Studies through better teacher training and guidance in the selection of educational materials.

Materials
The materials available include:

1) Bibliographies and Directories. At least three bibliographies or directories are available from PASE.

   a) Directory of Asian Studies in Secondary Education, ed. Ronald Suleski. The directory identifies high school Asian studies programs, lists the names of teachers and describes the type of course.

   b) A Critical Guide to Curriculum Units and Audio-Visual Materials on China. The guide annotates and evaluates nine curriculum units on bases such as: author's professional background, scope, and emphasis, teaching approach, unit emphasis, and outstanding contributions. Sixty-seven films are annotated, with pertinent descriptive materials included in the guide. Filmstrips, transparencies, tapes, and records are briefly noted. It is an excellent annotated list of media materials and curriculum units.

   c) An Annotated Guide to Contemporary China. The guide annotates volumes in Chinese studies, dividing the literature into background readings, historical and topical classes, and Chinese-U.S. relations. An excellent volume for schools beginning programs in the area.

2) Course Curricula and PASE reports.

   a) Objectives and Directions. This report details PASE meetings and institutes during 1972-73 academic year, and outlines future programs. The PASE Resource Center activities are described and educational materials planned for the future are explained.

   b) A course proposal is included in available materials. "A Learning Package on Social, Economic, Political, and Cultural Life in Modern China" is a short (ten-page) outline for a course designed for from six weeks to a full semester, and includes readings, course requirements, and a bibliography.

Note
Guides and directions range from $.50 to $1.95.

Organization
Social Studies Program, Education Development Center, Incorporated

Address
15 Mifflin Place
Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138

Purpose
"The Social Studies Program of Education Development Center, a non-profit corporation supported by public and private grants, is dedicated to the development of new models of instruction in the social sciences. All programs use an interdisciplinary approach, involve students in active models of learning, and stress the importance of evaluating as well as conceptualizing human experience."

Materials
"Materials and Strategies for Educational Innovation - 1973." This volume identifies nine units in social sciences ranging from "Underdevelopment: People and Technology" for grades 5 to 7 to "Exploring Human Nature" grades 11 or 12. International studies materials include the following:

a) "Conflict and Change: Athens and Sparta in Confrontation" - the 6-8 week unit analyzes the diplomacy and history of fifth century B.C. Greece prior to the Peloponnesian War. Students consider this time period to answer larger questions of war and its impact on society, demonstrate values and national security, and the conduct of diplomacy. This seems to be an exciting, interesting method of demonstrating the uses of history to answer and pose contemporary issues.

b) "From Subject to Citizen" tries to identify the determinants of power, the impact of social structure on individual behavior, and changing the social structure. Coordinate with this five-unit course, readings on American involvement in Cambodia (1970) and the conduct of British politics during the Elizabethan era try to identify answers to course questions within context of American and British experience.

c) "Man: A Course of Study" is a one year social studies course for upper elementary grades. Deals with the nature of man and the forces that make humans human. Use a great variety of materials and strategies.

Note
Catalog is available free.
